

Information on costs and charges - Indicative Cost Overview (ICO)

MiFID II increases the transparency requirements of costs and charges of services and of financial instruments for the clients.

Investment firms shall provide both indicative ex-ante and ex-post information relating to all costs and associated charges charged by the investment firm for the investment services(s) and/or ancillary services.

In this regard, UniCredit Bulbank AD provides this "Indicative Cost Overview" ("ICO"), containing the information on the costs and charges applicable to:

A. Financial Markets and Services - Financial instruments traded outside a trading venue (OTC Derivatives) and FX Forward :

The ICO table below shows the aggregate value (expressed in percentage) of the components of costs and charges broken down by instrument type and currency. These are valid for all notional values and maturities. These must be added to the fair value of the financial instrument (the theoretical value of the mid-market resulting from the Bank's pricing models) in order to determine the price.

In particular, the aggregate costs and charges are related to:

- The component of hedging of market risk (Hedging Cost); and
- The component relating to the remuneration of the Bank (Mark-Ups/Mark-Downs embedded in the transaction price).

Currency pairs that contain at least one of those currencies will be treated as EM Currencies.

Finally, UniCredit Bulbank AD will provide an annual report indicating the costs and charges incurred in OTC derivatives business to its clients.

B. Investment Intermediation:

For all exchange and OTC financial instruments in which the bank is an investment intermediary collecting a commission, the preliminary indicative cost disclosure is specified in the Tariff for individual clients and in the Tariff for legal entities, published on the Bank's website or as set out in a separate bilateral agreement with the client, if any.

OTC instruments, in which the bank is a party to the transaction: the cost to the client will be included in the price as a mark-up over the market price and will vary indicatively, namely as follows:

- Bonds: 0 ÷ 3% of the nominal value or the total value of the deal.

This document is subject to annual review.
