¹Is an individual who is employed, appointed or elected to perform any legislative, administrative, judicial function or other public function for:

- any country or territory. This also includes any subdivision of such country or territory as well as organisations integrating more than one country or territory;
- any public agency, department or instrumentality of that country or territory including any subdivision of such country or territory as well as organisations integrating more than one country or territory;
- any enterprise, organisation or entity owned or controlled by any of the foregoing. This includes state-owned or state-controlled companies. Generally, an entity would be deemed state-controlled where a government body has at least one of the following attributes:
 - More than 50% ownership
 - voting control
 - board control or
 - other indicia of control (e.g. golden share, government demonstration of control).

This includes also central banks, sovereign wealth funds and any business venture that is in turn owned or controlled by a government entity.

Not all employees of this kind of entities should be treated as Public Officials, as it is necessary to actually determine whether the person in question performs a legislative, administrative, judicial function or other public function. An indication for that may be power of decision/authorization and legal representation with regard to these functions (e.g. Top Management, CEO, CFO of public companies to be treated differently compared to an employee of the same company without these kind of powers);

· any Public international organization, e.g. United Nations, European Union, World Bank, International Monetary Fund, etc. This definition includes where known and when acting in an official capacity: members of any Royal Family, officials of political parties and candidates for public office.

Officers or employees of organisations that perform regulatory oversight, investigative or disciplinary authority over any of UniCredit Group Legal Entities -irrespective of the ownership or control over such organisations - shall be treated as Public Officials.

A Public Official who obviously acts in a strictly private role vis-à-vis the UC LE does not have to be treated as Public Official unless the benefit is intended to or could be perceived to be intended to influence the receiver in his/her public function. However, an individual does not cease to be a Public Official by simply purporting to act in a private capacity.

²Persons who are known to be closely linked to a Public Official in a way that influencing this person actually has to be regarded as influencing the Public Official him/herself, so that the Public Official is influenced indirectly. Those persons may include close family members (e.g. spouses, children, parents or siblings) or close associates (e.g. personal advisors, or owned/controlled legal entities)

3. Has one of the beneficiary's management board members a family relationship¹ with any of UniCredit Group Employees??
